THE SENATORIAL SITUATION

Michigan Newspapers Consider Newberry the Outstanding Figure.

Edmore Times: "Newberry is the logical man for United States Senator."

Vermontville Echo: "Truman H. Newberry is considered one of the ablest men in Michigan."

Lake Linden Native Copper Times: "Truman H. Newberry is the candidate that should appeal to fathers and sons of the boys over there."

Cedar Springs Clipper: "And now the only thing for the 365-day-in-the-year Republicans to do is to nominate Truman H. Newberry, and do it good and hard."

Bronson Journal: "As Secretary of the Navy in the cabinet of President Roosevelt, Mr. Newberry proved himself the Roosevelt type of man, aggressive and efficient."

Niles Daily Sun: "Truman H. Newberry, Republican candidate for United States Senator, looms like a full moon in the political heavens, and his good friends hereabouts are many."

Linden Leader: "Truman H. Newberry, of Detroit, is a man who has not made heretofore any great noise in the political arena, but withal a man who has been doing things which count."

Addison Courier: "Newberry was an efficient secretary of the navy and began the work which resulted in more privileges, more pay and more public recognition for the enlisted man in the service."

Richmond Review: "Just as sure the chill of winter approach will the Republicans and their supporters pick and place the next United States senator for Michigan and right now it looks like Truman H. Newberry."

Mount Pleasant Times: "The Times endorses Mr. Newberry for the United States Senate because it believes he is capable, honest, a man of high character and the candidate best qualified to represent Michigan in the United States Senate."

Keweenaw Miner: "Personally we favor the candidacy of Mr. Newberry as we have long been an admirer of him and of his course in public life, and feel that he is the one upon whom should fall the mantle once worn by Christianity, and that he is a man who can command the undivided support of every real republican in the state of Michigan."

Highland Park Times: "Candidate Newberry comes from that school of politics that has firm ideas along definite lines. In our industrial life the men can see the trade war to follow the present bloody conflict and these citizens are favoring a protectionist of the firmest kind for the senate, such as the Newberry record shows. It is this same feature that is attracting the workmen, together with the excellent past record of Commander Newberry in the industrial world where their interests were involved."

Paw Paw True Northerner: "The True Northerner sincerely believes that of all the available candidates, Commander Newberry is the man of the hour. He possesses that combination of senatorial values, by temperament, ability and experience which equip him most admirably to represent the great state of Michigan in the senate. He is a man who really does things without resorting to the blare of trumpets; a man who commands the respect of the nation, and for whom no man need ever make excuses."

lapheming Iron Ore: "Truman H. Newberry is a plain business man who has had much experience in state affairs, who is a gentleman and a scholar, who is clean and honest and who is now serving his country, making no pretense at being an extraordinary man or the only one fitted to represent this great state of Michigan. He has good ideas of the needs of the country, is level-headed and progressive. We want men loyal to the United States, real men, like those we have in the service of the country today offering their blood for liberty."

NEWBERRY A RED-BLOODED MAN
Houghton Mining Gazette: "We don't want a senator from Michigan who will talk pacifism. We do want a red-blooded man on the job."

"Such a man is Truman H. Newberry. Of that we can rest assured."

"He has always advocated and worked for preparedness. He has always gone the limit in his personal and public way for preparedness. And when opportunity came his way he did his duty with good judgment, with actual results, and with a proper mental capacity to understand his position. His sons are in the service. In his life there have been two wars in which this country took part. In each he did not miss his opportunity to do the best job that any man can do for the country."

"Republicans in Michigan need never be ashamed of their senator if they elect Newberry. He hasn't an opportunity to come home from his job in the harbor of New York to make a campaign of speeches throughout the state. His friends are doing that, and he has a great number of them."

French Sugar Mills Destroyed

France must import sugar today, most of it from this side of the ocean, because the largest portion of French sugar beet land is in German hands. As a result, the French people have been placed on a sugar ration of about 18 pounds a year for domestic use; a pound and a half a month. This photograph shows how the German troops destroyed French sugar mills.

A Packing Case for Two Colonies of Bees

In travelling over the state, I have met with a demand for the specifications for a packing case for two colonies, instead of the standard one and four colony cases. It seems that many feel that the two colony case is better adapted to the needs of most beekeepers. In nearly every yard, the colonies face in one direction, and it is very easy to bring two colonies together for packing. The chief objection to the one colony case is that more time and material is used per colony. The dimensions are given as a result of a study of a number of two colony cases found in various parts of the state. It is of such size as to accommodate almost any of the single or double-walled hives found in the course of our work. It is designed primarily for the standard ten frame single wall hive, using Hoffman frames. In the case the deeper frame is used, the packing case should be correspondingly higher.

The Bottom Board.—Dimensions 2 ft. 10 in. by 4 ft. This should be made of one-inch rough lumber, because it has to support the weight of the hives and packing and should be rigid enough so that it will not easily bow under the weight. The boards used should be 2 ft. 10 in. long. They should be bound together with at least three 4 ft. strips, 2 in. wide. The 2 in. strips should be nailed to the lower side of the bottom board. On the upper side of the bottom board, two 2x4 pieces 3 ft. 10 in. long are nailed 10 inches from the sides. These help make the bottom board rigid and support the hives and allow for four inches of packing under the hives. The Sides.—For one story hives, the sides should be 4 ft. long and 2 ft. 3 in. high; and for two story hives, they should be 3 ft. 1 in. high. The sides may be made of any light lumber that is convenient for use. Half-inch lumber is sufficient, as there is very little strain on the sides. If light lumber is used, at least three strips should be used to bind the boards firmly together. Store box or crating lumber, old siding, or cheap waste lumber can be used for the sides.

The Ends.—If one-inch lumber is used for the sides, the ends should be 2 ft. 8 in. long. If half-inch lumber is used for the sides, then the ends should be 2 ft. 9 in. long. The height corresponds, of course, to the sides. Hooks can be used for fastening the sides and ends together, when set up. Some prefer to nail them together.

The Cover.—The cover should be made with a rim around the edge, not less than an inch wide. This prevents the wind from lifting it. The cover should measure 2 ft. 10 1/2 in. by 4 ft. 1-2 in. inside of the rim. It can be made of half inch or inch lumber but if made of light lumber, it should be well reinforced to prevent sagging in the middle. The lumber need not be of very good quality as it should be covered with a very good quality of felt roofing.

The Tunnel.—This is the part that connects the entrance of the hive with the entrance of the packing case. This should be made the regular width of the full entrance of the hive. No entrance blocks should be used in the hive when packed. The tunnel should not be made as a part of the packing case, but should be made to fit against the inside of the entrance of the packing case. A small strip of wood can be nailed on the inside of the packing case, just below the entrance for the tunnel to rest upon. The entrance through the packing case should be nothing more than a 1-2 or 3-4 in. auger hole. This is plenty large enough for all of the needs of the colony during the time that the packing cases are used. Care should be used to see that the hives are well packed beneath. It is easier to put in the bottom packing before the slides are put in place. During the summer, the cases that are not needed for holding packing, should be piled up in such a way that none of the boards may become bent. With reasonable care, such packing cases should last many years. Poor wintering is the great cause of loss of bees in Michigan. Sufficient packing insures the use of less stores and is, therefore, a saving, and at the same time insures strong colonies in spring, if there were plenty of young bees in the fall. No amount of packing can compensate for weak colonies in the fall or for insufficient honey for wintering. The entrances should preferably be away from the prevailing winds. The apiary should be located at a place where it is well protected from the winds of winter. If the snow should cover the packing cases, leave it there. Snow is excellent protection from the cold. Always remember that the bees must keep a temperature in the cluster very little below that which is comfortable for you in the living room during the winter. In order to do this they must be given the best of protection both from the cold and wind. The large entrance commonly used, is one of the chief avenues through which the bees lose the heat of the cluster. Could you heat your home in winter with the door standing open?

B. F. Kindig,
State Inspector of Apiaries.
